Daily Adhkār and Duʿās

The full text carried in the masjid's app and website, submitted for review and approval by the ʿulamā

Issued 2026-11-14

Contents 142 supplications in three parts

Part A — Daily Adhkār · 26

Part B — Everyday Duʿās · 76

Part C — The forty Rabbanā · 40

Generated from the app's own data — not transcribed. Arabic set in Noto Naskh, the face the app and website use for scripture.

BEFORE YOU BEGIN

What is being asked

This document contains every supplication the masjid publishes in its app and on its website, in full. Nothing is summarised and nothing is left out. We are asking two ʿulamā to read it independently and to tell us, entry by entry, whether the Arabic wording and the reference given are correct.

Until recently the app carried a line at the foot of the Adhkār screen asking the reader to confirm the wording with the imam before treating it as settled. That was a note to the masjid printed where the congregation reads it, and it has been taken down. Taking it down is only an improvement if the confirming actually happens, which is what this document is for.

Where the text comes from

The Qurʼanic passages — Āyat al-Kursī, the muʿawwidhāt, the closing verses of al-Baqarah and the forty Rabbanā — are taken from the same machine-checked IndoPak text the masjid's Qurʼan reader uses. They are not retyped here.

The adhkār and duʿās drawn from hadith are the masjid's own renderings, written for this app, with the collection named on each. They are the widely known wordings, but wording does vary between narrations and printings, and settling which wording this masjid publishes is precisely the judgement we are asking for.

The English is a plain meaning rather than a formal translation, written for someone who does not read Arabic. No published translation is reproduced.

How to mark it

Each entry has a column on the right. Please mark the wording and the reference as correct or needing amendment, and write the amendment you want in the space beneath. Where an entry should be removed altogether, please say so and why.

Each of the three parts has its own sign-off page, so a part may be approved while another is still under consideration. Please work independently of the other reviewer.

Two matters we would particularly like an opinion on

1. Part C, the forty Rabbanā, carries the Arabic and the sūrah reference but no English at all. We would like to know whether that is acceptable as it stands, or whether an English meaning should be added before this part continues to be published.

2. The counts — “Once, morning and evening” and the like — and the virtues noted under some adhkār are shown to the reader as statements of fact. They should be checked as carefully as the wording itself.

PART A

Daily Adhkār

26 supplications — as they appear on the Daily Adhkār screen.

رَبَّنَا لَا تَجْعَلْنَا فِتْنَةً لِّلَّذِيْنَ كَفَرُوْا وَاغْفِرْ لَنَا رَبَّنَآ اِنَّكَ اَنْتَ الْعَزِيْزُ الْحَكِيْمُ

Our Lord, do not make us a trial for those who reject faith, and forgive us. Our Lord, You are the Almighty, the All-Wise.

Sign-off — Part C, Duʿās from the Qur’an — the forty Rabbanā

AFTERWARDS

After signing

Please return this document to the masjid office. The masjid will:

1. Make the amendments you have marked, and send the amended entries back to both reviewers for a second look before anything is published.

2. Keep the signed copy, dated, in the masjid's records.

3. Record a fingerprint of every approved entry in the app's source code, so that if any approved wording is later altered — by anyone, for any reason — the change is caught automatically and brought back to you rather than published quietly.

That third step is what makes this signature worth something in two years' time. An approval nobody can check against is an approval that expires the moment somebody edits a file.

Revision record

To be completed by the masjid each time this document is reissued.
